Serangan 1 jam 45 minit itu bermula pukul 10 pagi dengan penggoda pada 25 minit pertama meletakkan gambar sebuah pesawat Airbus A380 dimiliki MAS pada paparan utama laman web berkenaan.

Selepas itu, penggoda itu menukar gambar pesawat tersebut dengan gambar seekor cicak memakai sut hitam dan tertera satu mesej iaitu 404-Plane Not Found, Hacked by Lizard Squad.

Laman web MAS pulih pada pukul 10.45 pagi sebelum digodam semula pukul 12 tengah hari dan berakhir pukul 1 petang.

Kumpulan penggoda terbabit turut memberikan akaun Twitter untuk menghubungi mereka iaitu @umgrobert dan @umg_chris dengan turut memberikan beberapa nama seperti Lizard Squad, Ugnazi, Nathan Nye dan Henry Blair Strater.

Wartawan Kosmo! yang memantau laman web MAS mendapati laman web itu dipulihkan pada pukul 1 petang namun beberapa pautan pada paparan utama hanya mampu berfungsi semula selepas pukul 9 malam tadi.

Sementara itu, MAS dalam satu kenyataan memberitahu, syarikat itu mengesahkan bahawa laman web rasmi miliknya digodam namun menafikan data peribadi pelanggan syarikat itu berjaya dicerooboh penggoda terbabit.

MAS turut memaklumkan bahawa insiden pencerobohan itu tidak menjejaskan tempahan tiket yang telah dibuat oleh pelanggan sebelum ini.

"Para pelanggan akan terus ke laman web penggoda sekiranya melayari www.malaysiaairlines.com namun ia tidak menjejaskan pelayan web.

"MAS telah menangani isu ini dengan pembekal yang menyediakan perkhidmatan pelayan laman web. Sistem dijangka pulih sepenuhnya dalam tempoh 22 jam dari sekarang," katanya.

Berikutan isu itu, MAS telah membuat laporan kes itu kepada Cyber Security Malaysia dan Kementerian Pengangkutan.

Bagaimanapun, penggoda kemudian mengeluarkan kenyataan me-

Laman web MAS jadi sasaran penggodam

SHAH ALAM – Laman web syarikat penerbangan MAS pagi semalam, menjadi sasaran kumpulan penggodam yang menggelar diri mereka Cyber Caliphate (Khalifah Siber).

Cubaan untuk mengakses laman web MAS pagi semalam, membawa pengguna ke halaman berlatar belakang hitam dengan tulisan merah berbunyi 404 – Plane not found (pesawat tidak ditemui).

Kebiasaannya, laman web yang tidak dapat diakses akibat tiada liputan internet akan mengeluarkan nota berbunyi 404 – Page not found (halaman tidak ditemui).

Kumpulan itu juga, memberi gambaran seolah-olah mereka mempunyai kaitan dengan kumpulan militan Negara Islam (IS) apabila menulis ISIS will prevail atau IS akan kekal pada bahagian 'tab' laman web MAS.

Bagaimanapun, laman web itu kembali pulih lebih kurang setengah jam selepas itu.

MAS dalam satu kenyataan semalam mengesahkan laman webnya dikompromi tetapi menjelaskan ia bukan digodam.

Menurut syarikat itu, pengguna yang cuba mengakses www.malaysia-airlines.com dialihkan ke laman web milik penggodam.

Syarikat itu turut memaklumkan masalah bersifat sementara itu tidak memberi kesan kepada tempahan pelanggan dan data pengguna juga masih selamat.

"Pelayan web kami pada masa ini masih utuh. Kami telah menyelesaikan isu ini dengan penyedia perkhidmatan (laman web) dan sistem ini dijangka pulih sepenuhnya dalam tempoh 22 jam.

"Insiden ini juga telah dilaporkan serta-merta kepada CyberSecurity Malaysia dan Kementerian Pengangkutan," menurut MAS.

Kaitan kumpulan itu dengan IS dan motif perbuatan godam itu tidak dapat disahkan.

MAS website hacked

> Data of visitors, including a VIP, compromised

BY VATHANI PANIRCHELLVUM AND

PETALING JAYA: The website of Malaysia Airlines (MAS) was breached yesterday by hackers allegedly linked to Islamic State (IS) militants.

It was later learnt that data of visitors to www.malaysiaairlines.com had been compromised, including some personal details of a "Datuk Seri".

The website was altered to read "ISIS will prevail", with the message "Plane not found", seemingly in reference to flight MH370.

The message was signed "Cyber Caliphate", with a rap song playing in the background.

A subsequent check revealed the homepage had been hacked again, this time featuring an image of a lizard clad in a tuxedo and smoking a pipe. A group from Finland called "Lizard Squad" was said to be behind the second hack.

"404 - Plane Not found. Hacked by Lizard Squad. Follow cybercaliphate on twitter @lizardmafia @umgrobert @umg_chris," were the messages left on the airline's homepage.

MAS later issued a statement stating that visitors to www.malaysiaairlines.com were being re-directed to a hacker website.

"We assure our customers and clients that our website was not hacked and this temporary glitch does not affect their bookings and that user data remains secured.

"At this stage, MAS' web servers are intact. The airline has resolved the issue with its service provider and the system is expected to be fully recovered within 22 hours," the statement said.

Lizard Mafia responded to the statement by tweeting: "We would like to point out that @MAS is lying about user data not being compromised. Refer to earlier imgur link."

The post was accompanied by screenshots of MAS' email system, with customers' full name, email address and contact number, including some details of the VIP.

Defence Minister Datuk Seri Hishammuddin Hussein told theSun that he would not be able to comment on the alleged hacking, as the matter comes under the purview of the Home Ministry.

The matter has been reported to CyberSecurity Malaysia and the Transport Ministry.

Meanwhile, Inspector-General of Police Tan Sri Khalid Abu Bakar said police will investigate the matter under the Computer Crimes Act 1997 to ascertain the motive and the culprits behind the hacking.

MAS website hacked by group with 'links to IS'

MISCHIEF: MAS confirms domain name compromised, but says web servers are intact

THE Malaysia Airlines' (MAS) website was yesterday compromised by hackers who claimed to be from the "Lizard Squad", a group infamous for causing havoc on the Internet.

The hackers, who had hinted links to Islamic State (IS) militants, called themselves the "Official Cyber Caliphate".

Although it was unclear why the national airline was targeted, the group via its Twitter handle "@LizardMafia" said it was "going to dump some loot found on malaysiaairlines.com servers soon".

Internet users who visited MAS' official page yesterday were taken aback when they were redirected to another page bearing an image of a tuxedo-wearing lizard with the words "Hacked by Lizard Squad - Official Cyber Caliphate".

The page, which had a black backdrop, also carried the headline "404 - Plane Not Found", referring to MAS flight MH370, which went missing on March 8 last year with 239 people on board.

Three unverified Twitter account addresses and a recorded rap song were also featured on the page.

International media reports said versions of the redirected page in some regions included the wording "ISIS (Islamic State of Iraq and Syria) will prevail".

Following the incident, MAS launched a temporary page for its customers to book tickets and check-in online.

MAS, in a statement yesterday, confirmed its Internet domain name had been compromised, redirecting users.

"At this stage, MAS web servers are intact. The airline has resolved the issue with its service provider and the system is expected to be fully recovered within 22 hours."

"The matter has also been reported to CyberSecurity and the Transport Ministry. MAS assures (its) customers and clients that its network was not hacked and this temporary glitch does not affect their bookings and that user data remains secured," it said.

However, in response to the statement, Lizard Squad, which has 144,000 followers on Twitter, tweeted: "We would like to point out that @MAS is lying about user data not being compromised. Refer to earlier imgur link."

The link displayed a screenshot of what appeared to be an e-mail account bearing MAS bookings.

International and Trade Industry Minister Datuk Seri Mustapa Mohamed was said to be among the passengers whose names were on the itinerary.

Prior to the hack, Lizard Squad had hinted plans to hack MAS's website in a series of tweets.

"Let's get the lizards together and have some fun today. Cooking

A screen grab of Malaysia Airlines' website after it was hacked yesterday. Reuters pic up something special. <http://www.malaysiaairlines.com>," it said.

The MAS website, however, had been recovered as of press time yesterday.

CyberSecurity Malaysia chief executive officer Dr Amirudin Abdul Wahab said upon investigation, it was found that it was a case of domain hijacking.

He said CyberSecurity was prepared to assist MAS in resolving the issue and prevent future occurrences.

Domain hijacking, he said, was a process by which Internet domain names were stolen from its legitimate owners. It is also known as domain theft.

"The best way to protect the domain name is to protect the administrative email account associated with the domain or to go for a private domain registration," said Amirudin.

Meanwhile, the Malaysian Communications and Multimedia Commission said hacking fell under the Computer Crimes Act 1997, which is under the jurisdiction of the police.

Inspector-General of Police Tan Sri Khalid Abu Bakar told the New Straits Times the police were investigating the matter under the act.

The Lizard Squad had last month taken credit for attacks that took down the Sony PlayStation Network and Microsoft's Xbox Live network.

On Jan 18, the group on its Facebook page (Lizard Squad) with 25,184 likes (at press time) said they "want to hack into Russia database and launch some nukes (nuclear missiles) to Australia".

Another Facebook post stated: "FBI - Federal Bureau of Investigation could easily find all of IS if they actually tried enough."

The extent of any links with IS, however, has yet to be known.

Lizard Squad's (LS) actions last year

AUG 24: LS claimed that a plane in which the president of Sony Online Entertainment, John Smedley, was flying (American Airlines Flight 362) had explosives on board.

AUG 24: The PlayStation Network was taken down via a distributed denial-of-service (DDoS) attack, with LS claiming responsibility.

AUG 26: LS hacked Twitch TV, a video platform and community for gamers.

AUG 27: Servers of the game League of Legends were taken offline with a DDoS attack.

NOV 23: LS claimed it attacked Destiny servers with a DDoS attack.

DEC 1: Xbox Live was apparently attacked by LS, users attempting to connect to use the service would be given the 80151909 error code.

DEC 2: LS hacked Machinima.com, a video entertainment network for gamers, replacing its front page with ASCII (American Standard Code for Information Interchange) art of their logo.

DEC 8: Anyone who attempted to access the PlayStation Store was greeted by the message: "Page Not Found! It's not you. It's the internet's fault."

DEC 22: Internet in North Korea was taken offline by a DDoS attack, LS claimed responsibility for the attack and linked to an IP address located in the country. North Korean Internet services were restored on Dec 23.

DEC 25: On Christmas Day, LS claimed to have performed a DDoS attack on Xbox Live and PlayStation Network.

DEC 26: A Sybil attack involving more than 3,000 relays was attempted against the Tor network. Nodes with names beginning with "LizardNSA" began appearing, LS claimed responsibility for this attack.

Hackers thumb noses at MAS denial

Screen capture shows main page of MAS's website replaced by a photo of a MAS plane, with the words '404 — plane not found'.

KUALA LUMPUR — Scoffing at Malaysia Airlines' (MAS) claim that its passenger user data remained secure despite yesterday morning's attack on its domain, hacker group Lizard Squad has leaked a list of flight bookings online, including one believed to be for minister Datuk Seri Mustapa Mohamed.

Using the Twitter handle @LizardMafia, the group posted an image of what is believed to be the national carrier's email system, which lists, among others, an urgent flight reservation for the International Trade and Industry minister, Malay Mail Online reported.

The image also lists a number of travel itinerary receipts containing the names of passengers, their email addresses and contact numbers.

"lololol," @LizardMafia wrote on the microblogging site. "Lol" is an acronym for "laugh out loud", a term commonly used as Internet slang to denote laughter.

In another posting, Lizard Squad accused MAS of lying in its press statement earlier when it claimed that its user data is secure.

"(MEDIA STATEMENT): We would like to point out that @MAS is lying about user data not being compromised. Refer to earlier imgur link," the hacker group said.

Earlier yesterday, MAS confirmed the attack on its Domain Name System (DNS) but said the incident only resulted in a "temporary glitch" that did not affect flight bookings or user data.

MAS confirmed its DNS was compromised in the process and visitors to www.malaysiaairlines.com were immediately redirected to a hacker website.

But, it stressed, the issue has since been resolved.

"The airline has resolved the issue with its service provider and the system is expected to be fully recovered within 22 hours," it said in the statement on its Facebook page.

"Malaysia Airlines assures customers and clients that its website was not hacked and this temporary glitch does not affect their bookings and that user data remains secured."

MAS said the matter has also been reported to CyberSecurity Malaysia and the Transport Ministry.

Yesterday, MAS's official website had its page title replaced with the words "Isis will prevail" by hackers calling themselves the "Cyber Caliphate".

The main page of the website was replaced with a photo of Airbus A380 jetliner bearing MAS's logo, with the words "404 — plane not found", a reference to Internet error code "404 not found".

A few minutes later, the page was then changed to a black background, listing another entity called "Lizard Squad" from Finland as one of those responsible for the hack.

The squad's logo is that of a lizard wearing a tuxedo, a top hat, a monocle and smoking a pipe.

Polis siasat hubungan Lizard Squad dengan kumpulan militan

KUALA LUMPUR - Polis sedang menyiasat penjenayah siber, Lizard Squad yang menggodam laman web rasmi Penerbangan Malaysia (MAS) sama ada mereka benar-benar mempunyai kaitan dengan kumpulan militan Islamic State (IS) seperti yang didakwa.

Ketua Polis Negara, Tan Sri Khalid Abu Bakar ketika dihubungi Kosmo! menerusi kiriman aplikasi WhatsApp berkata, pihaknya akan melakukan siasatan mengenai kumpulan penggoda itu yang menyebabkan urusan pelanggan dengan MAS menerusi laman web tergendala selama hampir dua jam semalam.

"Nanti pihak kami akan semak kumpulan penggoda itu," kata Khalid ringkas.

Sementara itu, satu sumber keselamatan pula memberitahu, insiden pencerobohan laman web MAS itu dipercayai tiada kaitan dengan kumpulan IS sebaliknya dilakukan segelintir individu yang tidak bertanggungjawab bagi mencetuskan suasana provokasi.

KHALID

Bagaimanapun, jelas sumber itu lagi, pihaknya sedang menjalankan siasatan menyeluruh bagi mengenal pasti identiti atau latar belakang penggoda itu.

"Memang penjenayah siber itu beri gambaran seolah-olah mereka mumpu-nyai kaitan dengan kumpulan militan dengan menggelarkan diri sebagai Cyber Caliphate (Khalifah Siber) selain memaparkan mesej ISIS WILL PREVAIL (ISIS Akan Terus Kekal) namun perkara itu boleh dikatakan sengaja mahu menimbulkan rasa panik," ujarnya.

Sementara itu, CyberSecurity Malaysia mengesahkan menerima laporan tentang gangguan pada laman web rasmi MAS semalam.

Ketua Pegawai Eksekutifnya, Dr. Amirudin Abdul Wahab berkata, menurut kajian memang didapati berlaku insiden kecurian domain (domain hijacking) terhadap laman web tersebut.

Kata beliau, kecurian domain itu berlaku apabila laman web syarikat penerbangan itu berjaya diceroob dan dikawal oleh pihak ketiga tanpa kebenaran pemilik laman web tersebut.

Keputusan Rayuan Kes Liwat Anwar Ditetapkan 10 Feb

PUTRAJAYA, 26 Jan (Bernama) -- Mahkamah Persekutuan menetapkan 10 Feb untuk keputusan rayuan terakhir Ketua Pembangkang Datuk Seri Anwar Ibrahim terhadap sabitan dan hukuman penjara lima tahun atas tuduhan meliwat bekas pembantu peribadinya, Mohd Saiful Bukhari Azlan enam tahun lepas.

Tarikh keputusan itu diumumkan hari ini dalam akaun Twitter Badan Kehakiman Malaysia. Keputusan itu akan diumumkan pada 9 pagi.

Apabila dihubungi, Ketua Bahagian Komunikasi Korporat dan Hubungan Antarabangsa Mahkamah Persekutuan, Mohd Aizuddin Zolkeply mengesahkan tarikh itu.

Keputusan rayuan itu akan diumumkan oleh panel lima hakim diketuai Ketua Hakim Negara Tun Arifin Zakaria.

Turut sama bersidang Presiden Mahkamah Rayuan Tan Sri Md Raus Sharif dan hakim-hakim Mahkamah Persekutuan Tan Sri Abdull Hamid Embong, Tan Sri Suriyadi Halim Omar dan Datuk Ramly Ali, yang mendengar rayuan Anwar pada November tahun lepas dan menangguhkan keputusan itu.

Anwar, 67, membuat rayuan terhadap keputusan Mahkamah Rayuan yang mendapati dia bersalah atas tuduhan meliwat dan menjatuhkan hukuman penjara lima tahun.

Mahkamah Rayuan pada 7 Mac tahun lepas, membatalkan keputusan Mahkamah Tinggi yang melepas dan membebaskan Anwar daripada pertuduhan itu.

Penasihat Parti Keadilan Rakyat (PKR) itu didakwa meliwat Mohd Saiful, 27 di Unit 11-5-1 di Kondominium Desa Damansara, Jalan Setiakasih, Bukit Damansara, di sini antara 3.10 petang dan 4.30 petang pada 26 Jun 2008.

Pertuduhan dibuat mengikut Seksyen 377B Kanun Keseksaan yang membawa hukuman penjara sehingga 20 tahun dan sebatan, jika sabit kesalahan.

Jika Anwar kalah dalam rayuannya, Anggota Parlimen Permatang Pauh itu boleh hilang kelayakan sebagai seorang anggota parlimen sebagaimana Artikel 48(1)(e) Perlembagaan Persekutuan yang menyatakan seseorang anggota parlimen boleh dilucutkan kelayakannya jika beliau dijatuhkan hukuman penjara lebih daripada setahun atau didenda lebih daripada RM2,000.

Pada 9 Jan 2012, Mahkamah Tinggi melepas dan membebaskan Anwar daripada tuduhan meliwat Mohd Saiful atas alasan mahkamah tidak boleh 100 peratus pasti tentang integriti sampel DNA yang diambil untuk ujian daripada mangsa.

Mahkamah Tinggi memutuskan bahawa sampel itu mungkin diganggu sebelum sampai ke Jabatan Kimia untuk dianalisis.

Bagaimanapun, Mahkamah Rayuan, meminda keputusan Mahkamah Tinggi bahawa hakim perbicaraan terkilaf apabila meragui integriti sampel berdasarkan keterangan dua pakar saksi yang dipanggil pihak pembelaan.

Anwar diwakili oleh sepasukan 15 peguam diketuai bekas hakim Mahkamah Persekutuan Datuk Seri Gopal Sri Ram manakala peguam kanan Tan Sri Muhammad Shafee Abdullah mengetuai pasukan pendakwaan.
